ASTRAL OPPORTUNITY

Now that the war and labor is adjusting itself to peace conditions, there are to be open to them. The question arises as to whether there are still to continue to have the same opportunities which have been afforded in the past. The war gave the Negro the chance to prove himself in the most important way. He has shown that he is capable of doing the same work as the white man, and that he is capable of doing it as well as the white man. The question now is whether there is to be any more of this kind of opportunity.

This question is being asked in many places. It is being asked in the North, in the South, and in the West. It is being asked in the cities and in the country. It is being asked in the minds of the people. It is being asked in the minds of the leaders. It is being asked in the minds of the workers. It is being asked in the minds of the employers. It is being asked in the minds of the government. It is being asked in the minds of the people.

The Chicago case was made known in the early part of the year. It was a case of a Negro who had been working in a factory in Chicago. He had been working there for some time, and he had been doing a good job. He had been promoted to a higher position, and he had been given a raise in salary. He had been given a chance to prove himself, and he had proved himself. He had shown that he was capable of doing the same work as the white man, and that he was capable of doing it as well as the white man.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, through its secretary, John H. Johnson, of New York, made public the details of the case. The Negro who had been working in the factory in Chicago, had been promoted to a higher position, and he had been given a raise in salary. He had been given a chance to prove himself, and he had proved himself. He had shown that he was capable of doing the same work as the white man, and that he was capable of doing it as well as the white man.

At a point where it is better advised to proceed, to through the Chicago ship building plant at Wilmington, Delaware. This plant is owned by the same officers who are mentioned in the article. It is a plant which has been built by the same officers who are mentioned in the article. It is a plant which has been built by the same officers who are mentioned in the article. It is a plant which has been built by the same officers who are mentioned in the article.

Assuming, therefore, that the Negro here are to be made good, there has been a change in the attitude of the white man. He has seen that the Negro is capable of doing the same work as the white man, and that he is capable of doing it as well as the white man. He has seen that the Negro is capable of doing the same work as the white man, and that he is capable of doing it as well as the white man. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, in "Woman! Woman!"

The Story of a Woman's Temptation.

Perhaps why woman loves and sins. Imagine a woman whose love for her husband is so great that she goes bereft to another man! WILSON, WILSON, is a powerful photograph that analyzes woman's heart and soul. Evelyn Nesbit stars in the part of Alice Johnson, a young girl who has her choice between marriage and free love. It tells the story of a young girl who becomes disinterested with her unromantic existence in a small country town. She comes to New York and finds the lure of the great "White City." Free love beckons to her, but she resists. The camera divulges the life she has lived at home previously her feelings.
Thus she arrives. Alice also is tempted. Her husband gives her a position, but it is a day from England. It is then that she forgets her religious and moral obligations. She makes the improper acquaintance to her neighbor's husband. Her husband sees in her society a woman who has come from the path of virtue and comes back after the child has been born. Alice returns to her old home, but when Wilson obtains a divorce her career is ended and she has to leave the district, and drive the girl away. Thus Alice ends refuge with Governor Wilson.
The picture is a masterpiece for the screen. It is the only picture that has been shown here for the little child has watched in him a new love for the woman he has married. It is the only picture that has been shown here for the little child has watched in him a new love for the woman he has married.
